MY NAME IS CAROLINE

"For most of my life, people thought I was the girl who had it all. I grew up in a good neighborhood, went to the best schools, and was a successful competitive athlete. But, unknown to my family and friends, I also had eating disorders that almost killed me..."

MY NAME IS CAROLINE
by Caroline Adams Miller

For seven years Caroline was literally "dying" to be thin. Affluent and bright, she seemed to have it all, but she was the victim of an alarming disorder called bulimia. Haunted by the "binge-purge syndrome," she finally cried out for help. Today she is helping thousands beat the tragic eating disorders that destroy their lives. Here is the candid, hard-hitting story of her descent into illness and her final brave triumph.

CHICAGO SUN-TIMES

FREEDOM'S CHILD
by Walter Polovchak

The Soviets wanted him back. His parents wanted him back. But Walter Polovchak, a 12-year-old Ukrainian boy, refused to leave America.

Dragged through a six-year court battle — a complex family case with political repercussions heard round the world — young Walter remained a level-headed kid who spoke out with such innocence and love for this country that he warmed the hearts of us all. Here is his story, a triumph.
